

Police with Passion—A New Book by KP Police

The Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Police have a unique credit of publishing a yearly book on the performance and services of KP police. The fresh edition of 'Policing with Passion', 2015-16 published by the Central Police Office (CPO), Peshawar, has set an unprecedented example for other police leadership to capture the otherwise elusive moments of both bravery and creativity in countering terrorism fighting crime and introducing reforms. The simultaneous characteristics of both being a practitioner and a scholar are seldom seen in a police officer. The Inspector General of Police, KP, Mr. Nasir Khan Durrani is one of those God-gifted genius people of the world who have been endowed with both the qualities of sword and pen. While being on the battlefield to lead and encourage the force and then reflect on the experiences for creating more knowledge is a marvelous attribute of the selected people. The book 'Policing with Passion' is full of such examples of the police leadership in KP Province.

While the book will be critically evaluated and commented upon by scholars across the world, it has ushered an era of preserving and reminding us the thrilling moments of leading a police force which has been facing terrible challenges of countering terrorism and absorbing the after-shocks of militancy in the adjacent tribal areas and across the Durand Line. It is generally said that "excellence comes in millimeters," but the KP Police have many laurels of excellence to their caps. The various reforms and initiatives, introduced by the IGP, KP in the last three years are now presented to the readers, researchers, policy-makers and practitioners for a genuine and critical debate. The book is a must read for the officers of law-enforcing agencies and the people involved in the criminal justice system. The book can be found on the official website of KP Police (<http://kppolice.gov.pk/thebook/>) (Farhat Ullah & Zia Ullah Akhunzada)
